

RED DRIVE NEARING RUMANIAN BORDER

Meandering Along the Main Stem By WASH FAYETTE

I happened to drop in at the Red Cross surgical dressings room at Memorial Hall the other afternoon . . . and was surprised at the small number of women engaged in making dressings for the armed services . . . on other visits the room seemed filled with white hooded, nimble fingered ladies doing a fine piece of humanitarian work . . . and records show that many thousands of dressings have gone out from the Fayette County chapter of the Red Cross here for use in hospitals all over the world where our fighting men are stationed.

Those in charge of the work seem to feel that they've been "let down" or something . . . so many women who formerly showed up for the afternoon sessions have quit coming . . . so I suggested a little yarn in this column to call it to their attention. . . I just can't believe the good women of our community are shirking a duty in the war effort . . . it certainly must be just one of those things in a period of war excitement and the holiday season.

So here's a challenge, ladies! . . . I'm betting that when many of you read this you'll notice your left ear getting red . . . and you'll make plans at once to spend at least one afternoon each week helping in the surgical dressings classes . . . If you've never been up . . . call Mrs. Martha Braun or Mrs. Harold Craig to see when you can be best used . . . and take this as a personal invitation to get into a civilian war service which will bring you a whole lot of satisfaction . . . and help in saving the lives and sufferings of our boys in the services.

Will E. Dale, veteran furniture dealer of Washington C. H., wears a diamond ring that is decidedly out of the ordinary, or rather the diamond is unusual.

It is a two karat stone set in a Masonic emblem, and is the first diamond he purchased after fortune began to smile upon him in his chosen field of endeavor.

I noticed the stone a few days ago while visiting a few minutes with Will, and said to him: "Is that the stone you found in the furnace?"

"That's it," he replied, and then instantly said, "I thought you had forgotten all about that!"

I had not, however, and recall distinctly that years ago Will discovered that the stone was gone from the ring. He remembered selling a rug to a woman during the late afternoon, so he sent one of his men post-haste into the country to see if the missing stone had been wrapped up in the rug. It could not be found.

Then Will started a real search about the store, and wound up by looking in the ashes of the furnace. There he found the stone, apparently unscathed by its hot experience.

Will believes he lost the stone while putting coal in the furnace, and that the stone rolled down through the embers and dropped into the ashes without spending much time in the red hot coals.

The weather recently has been so changeable that I have thought seriously of contacting the "Paint Valley Prophet" and see if he can't order up a little better kind of weather for the remainder of the year, or at least until Ground Hog Day on February 2.

I don't know what the Paint Valley Prophet's turtles, snakes, muskrats, etc., are, are saying about the remainder of the winter, but so far it has been a dandy for cold, snow and extreme changes.

I felt slighted last fall when I did not receive a forecast as to what to expect this winter, but I guess the Paint Valley Prophet had missed his previous forecast just a little and was not giving out anything. Then, too, I understand he has not been in close touch with some of his animal friends along the streams, and perhaps as a result could not hazard a guess as to the kind of weather to expect.

We are also going to miss that ground hog Floyd Tracy owned, which came out on February 2, all right, saw his shadow immediately, but remained out continuously the remainder of the winter, and the weather was fairly mild regardless of the shadow.

CONGRESS BACK FACING SEVERAL VITAL PROBLEMS

Legion Program for Helping Veterans Up - - President To Send Message

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Congress reassembled today with two definite deadlines staring members in the face and pressure mounting for action on half a dozen other legislative problems.

By February 17, the lawmakers must decide what to do about food subsidies and the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) which administers them. Stopgap legislation enacted before the holiday recess extended life of CCC until that date.

By March, a decision must be reached on Social Security payroll tax rates, frozen by emergency legislation at the present level of 1 percent each on employers and employees for the first two months of this year. Without the legislation, the tax would have advanced automatically to 2 percent January 1.

The Senate finance committee adopted an amendment to the pending $2,275,600,000 tax increase bill extending the freeze throughout 1944, and Chairman George (D-Ga.) announced it would get first consideration when the revenue measure is called up—possibly tomorrow.

The outlook for the opening day was little beyond formalities. The program for the whole week still was up in the air pending knowledge of when the president's annual message to the state of the Union would be delivered and whether Mr. Roosevelt is sufficiently recovered from the grippe to make it in person.

A far-reaching program of post-discharge financial assistance for service men and women, sponsored by the American Legion, was laid before Congress today by a bi-partisan group of Senate and House members.

The Legion called its proposal "A Bill of Rights" for G. I. Joe and G. I. Jane, in proposing:

Demobilization pay of $500 for those with 18 months service, $400 for 12 to 18 months, $300 for six to 12 months, $200 for three to six months, and $100 for less than three months.

Unemployment compensation credit double the amount veterans would have received in civilian work during the period of service.

Educational allowances of $50 monthly for single veterans and $75 for married service men, plus all educational expenses in established colleges and universities up to four years.

Federal aid to states planning to lend veterans home building funds at low interest rates.

Designation of the Veterans' Bureau as a "vital war agency" with priority for materials and equipment second only to the war and navy departments to carry out a hospital construction program.

Chairman Rankin (D-Miss) of the House veterans' legislation committee, one of the congressional sponsors, said a prime objective of the bill was "to remove

Lithuania's Exiled King Cleveland Fire Victim

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Antanas Smetona, Lithuania's exiled president who successfully withstood German diplomatic pressure only to flee Russian occupation of the tiny republic, died of suffocation yesterday in a residence fire.

Artificial respiration failed to revive the 69-year-old president after he sought to recover a fur coat in an attic apartment where he resided since 1942 with his wife, Sofie, 58.

Capital of Bulgaria Hit by Heavy Force of Flying Fortresses

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A heavy force of American Flying Fortresses bombed Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, today.

The packed formations swept in about noon, it was announced, for the fifth heavy bomber assault in two months on the German-controlled capital. The raid was a close follow-up to yesterday's first announced Fortress operations from Italian bases, when the port and naval base at Pola in the northern Adriatic area was hit severely.

Sofia is a rail center for German troop and supply movements in Yugoslavia, Rumania and Bulgaria, while Pola is a shipping center used by the Germans to supply their Yugoslav front.

No further details of the Sofia bombing were made available immediately.

"A heavy force of Flying Fortresses of the 15th Air force bombed Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, at noon today," said the brief two-line special air communiqué announcing the attack.

GOP CHAIRMEN CHALLENGES FDR

Soldier Trend Is Republican, Spangler Declares

By JACK BELL
CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Mackinac declaration is "the only concrete and comprehensive" statement on American foreign policy by leaders of any party, Chairman Harrison E. Spangler of the Republican national committee said today.

In an address prepared for delivery to a conference of national committeemen and state chairmen, Spangler asserted the Mackinac declaration, which stated the United States must assume its full responsibility in world affairs and cooperate with other nations in securing world peace, "is today the only concrete and comprehensive statement of American foreign policy formulated by the leaders of any party."

"This declaration . . . made possible the adoption of the non-partisan Connally resolution. We see its influence in the terms arranged by Secretary Hull at the Moscow conference."

TURN-IN OF TUBES MADE VOLUNTARY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Remember that empty tooth paste tube you're always forgetting when you need a new supply? Well, after March 1, you can get a new tube even when you forget to bring in the old one, but the War Production board would like for you to remember to bring in the old one anyway, as a voluntary, patriotic matter.

WPB urged turn-ins, even though most tubes now in circulation contain less tin and therefore have less salvage value.

Fast-Talking Yank Captures 19 Heines

By KENNETH L. DIXON

With the AEF of the Italian Front, Jan. 9.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Pvt. Bill Miller, 21, a fast-talking doughboy from Peoria, Ill., hoodwinked a German lieutenant and 18 enlisted men into believing they were surrounded and then marched them single-handed to captivity across 600 yards of No Man's land.

Pvt. Miller pulled off the exploit when he went into action for the first time Thursday night as his company attacked a hill in the San Vittore area. Surrounded by 50 Germans while he and a few comrades were bringing some wounded and a prisoner to the rear, Billy and his mates had to surrender.

A platoon of 19 Germans took charge of Billy. In a cave where they put up for the night, the Jerries started talking about taking him back to a prison camp. The lieutenant, who spoke English, told him what they were saying.

"You'll never make it," said Billy. He knew he was at least a quarter of a mile in front of his own line, but he added, "we've got you surrounded. Listen!"

JAPS RALLY FORCES FOR FIGHT TO HOLD ISLANDS IN PACIFIC

Americans Encountering Stiffer Opposition at Invasion Points In New Britain—Air Force Also Challenging Allied Assaults

By MORRIS LANDSBERG

By The Associated Press

Reports from Allied headquarters today indicated that the Japanese have rallied their forces and apparently don't intend giving up strategic territory in the southwest Pacific without a stubborn fight.

Contrasting with the comparative ease in establishing the original beachheads, American troops encountered stiffened enemy lines at both invasion points on New Britain. And an upsurge of Japanese resistance slowed the Australian advance up the north coast of New Guinea.

In the air, too, the Japanese threw in heavy interception forces, but Allied fliers more than held their own in fierce sky battles.

These developments provided timely emphasis for the words of Col. Warren J. Clear, army general staff expert on Japan, who told a Pacific coast war conference at Los Angeles that Japan's army is stronger than ever and that, despite heavy losses, it has more planes than at the outbreak of the war.

Gen. MacArthur's weekend communications told of a Marine drive inland from Borgen Bay east of Cape Gloucester, New Britain, in the face of Japanese machinegun fire.

CINCINNATI MARKET HANDLES ALL HOGS

CINCINNATI, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Normal hog-marketing conditions prevailed today on the Cincinnati livestock exchange although a federal spokesman repeated a request of last week that producers consult the Cincinnati outlet before consigning shipments here.

Receipts totaled around 7,000 head but with prospects would not exceed 500 to 800, that holdovers to Tuesday J. H. Dietrich of the War Food Administration said.

CHILDREN LEFT AT HOME OVERCOME BY FUMES

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Emmett Galloway said the thought that something was wrong at home kept troubling her last night as she watched a motion picture. She left in mid-film, found her two children and a neighbor's son lying on the living room floor, overcome with furnace fumes.

Hospital attendants said all would recover.

PEOPLE TO BE ENSLAVED WHEN WARSAW DESTROYED

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Polish underground radio said today that German plans for the evacuation of Warsaw provide for the destruction of the former capital's industries and communications and the deportation to Germany of all Poles capable of work.

The broadcast added that all Poles considered capable of leading an uprising were to be shot together with their families.

TYPHUS BREAKS OUT AT NORTH NAZI BASE

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Norwegian legion sources said today a serious outbreak of typhus in Kirkenes, chief German base in the far north, had forced the Germans to isolate the area to prevent the fever from spreading to other fronts.

Pvt. Eddie Pendergraf, Bereman Street, and Four Buddies Take Refuge in Shallow Cave as They Rest on Road While Enemy Shells Explode Nearby

Pvt. Eddie Pendergraf, son of Mrs. Lewis Warner, Bereman Street, is right in the thick of the fighting over in Italy—just as his mother and other relatives and friends here had expected.

Eddie went into the army less than a year ago, March 2, 1943, to be exact. His family heard from him from time to time during his training period and then, after a long interlude, got word that he had landed safely overseas. In all of his letters, he had said he liked the army and gave the unmistakable impression that he, like thousands of other young Americans, was anxious to get at the Heines, get this business of war finished and come back to pick up normal living where he had left off.

Recent letters gave the impression that he was "in there pitching" for the folks back home, but few details ever were given about the action he was seeing or the life he was leading.

Now, on the eve of the start of the Fourth War Loan, comes a photograph from the front in Italy to show what Pvt. Eddie and his buddies have been and now are doing to keep America free. He does not look distressed in the photo which shows him with four other American fighting men resting in a shallow cave in the side of a mountain road for protection from enemy shells and bullets. The philosophy of "let come what will and we'll do our part and make the best of it" of the typical American fighting man is apparent in the attitude of the little group, all of whom are completely relaxed and ready for emergencies with rifles by their sides. Gone is the neat "dressed up" appearance of the soldier in camp. Their blouses are unbuttoned and their shirts open at the neck. The glossy shine on their shoes of training

V-Mail Has Its Advantages---But Headaches, Too, In Serial Form

By HAL BOYLE
AN AMERICAN BASE IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, Jan. 2.—(Delayed)—(AP)—V-Mail is widely used by the troops because it is supposed to get to its destination more quickly, but it is also one of the most cursed inventions of the war.

Soldiers complain because the V-Mail letter form is too brief and impersonal.

"It just does not seem like a letter from home."

It also results in some funny complications.

For example, almost every day the wife of Staff Sgt. Robert E. Smith of St. Louis, writes him three V-mail letters, continuing the news from page to page. Sometimes all the pages do not arrive on the same day.

That is why the sergeant at present is sorely puzzled. Page two of his wife's most recent letter begins "as I was telling you in page number one, I insured my left arm for $720."

Unfortunately, page number one has not arrived.

"I can hardly wait until it gets here," Smith said. "I can't figure why she wanted to insure her arm

BITTER FIGHTING FAILS TO HALT YANKS IN ITALY

Allies Applying Pressure To Hitler's Forces on Two Sides of 'Fortress'

By RICHARD MCMURRAY

Spearheads of Gen. Nikolai

Vatutin's First Ukrainian Army plunged within 15 miles of the Bug River today, and neared Vinnitsa, rail city on the Bug serving as main control point for German communications to the Dnieper bend.

Other Vatutin units sent deeper one jaw of a possible trap for thousands of Germans in the Smela gap, a Nazi-held zone in the rear extending eastward to the Dnieper River. This southward drive was pushing toward a junction with Gen. Ivan S. Konev's Second Ukrainian Army, advancing westward through Alexandrovka above Kirovograd.

Farther north, the Soviets were within five miles of Sarny (35 miles inside old Poland).

Vatutin's western advance guards seized Zhornischche, 15 miles from a bend of the Bug River, 30 miles southeast of Vinnitsa and 33 miles from Odessa-Warsaw railway.

(The Bug River is the eastern border of Transnistria, the Soviet area awarded Rumania by the Germans.)

Other units pushed through Schastlivaya, 19 miles east of Vinnitsa, threatening to cut the most important east-west railway left the Germans in the Ukraine.

The German high command asserted today that Russian amphibious forces had been beaten back in an attempted landing at the Black Sea port of Ochakov, 40 miles east of Odessa and the same distance west of their southern anchor of Kherson at the mouth of the Dnieper.

The report lacked confirmation.

With the Russians within 65 miles of the Dniester River, which once bounded Rumania, and 30 miles deep in pre-war Poland, the thrust by sea was a flanking threat against the German armies of the south, already gravely menaced by swift Russian advances which had turned into pursuits.

Another unconfirmed German report said the Russians had reached Sarny, 35 miles inside old Poland and astride the last good north-south railway short of Brest-Litovsk, 135 miles to the west. If Sarny was reached, this meant an overnight advance of five miles.

Berlin said gloomily that "the outcome of the whole war depends" on the battles in southern Russia and Stockholm dispatches said the Nazi flight had become "almost chaotic." Moscow asserted the collapse of 500,000 to 700,000 enemy troops in the Ukraine might be imminent.

The thundering tanks and Cosacks of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's First Ukrainian Army struck within 33 miles of the Odessa-Warsaw railway, last remaining major supply and escape route from southern Russia. They killed 2,300 Germans, destroyed 105 tanks and 78 planes and captured enormous stores of booty. Half a dozen important junctions were immediately in the path of the Russian avalanche.

A great trap was curling around Smela in the upper part of the Dnieper bend and the jaws of this narrowing trap contracted to less than a 75-mile gap. Sunday the Russians came within 14 miles of the Bug River. The last Russian province before Bessarabia was entered.

Yanks Slug Ahead

Fifth Army men slugged through the Italian mountains within four miles of Cassino, key to Rome on the main highway, the Via Cassilina. Troops advanced two miles from Mt. Maio and took Vecchio Ridge. Americans won Mt. Porchia, southwest of newly-won San Vittore. Britons of the Fifth Army forced the Peccia River west of Mt. Magliore. An American private

Bloomington Girl Speaks In Prince Of Peace Contest; To Study Home Economics

MISS MILDRED SIMERL

Miss Mildred Simerl didn't win the district Prince of Peace declamation contest in Springfield Sunday, but she certainly had tough competition.

The other five contestants were winners in Columbus, Miami, Dayton, Mansfield and St. Paris contests. The Columbus representative won the gold medal and a chance to win the college scholarship offered to the winner of the state contest.

Miss Simerl is a senior in Bloomington High School. She won the contest there early in November—her speech teacher is Mrs. Doris Dick. Beside's pulling in almost straight A's—she's had one B so far—she takes time out for collecting coins and miniature vases. She and her mother, Mrs. Elmer Simerl, placed 30 times in food and flower shows at the Fayette County Fair this year.

Next year Miss Simerl is planning to enter Ohio State University to major in dietetics. She admits she likes to cook.

"I hardly ever feel nervous," she said, regarding her speech-making. "I just look over my audience and then begin."

This country is Republican rather than Democratic. But . . . 'Win the War' is a slogan that belongs to all of us. . . .

"The term New Deal is now an embarrassment. Some other catch-phrase is to be devised . . . It is too late. Catch-phrases will not delude a people who see mismanagement in time of war. The term New Deal will not die. It will live on as a description of the kind of government the people of this country will not again tolerate."

The chairman's formal assessment of the political situation followed by less than 24 hours his disclosure at a press conference that an informal sampling of sentiment among some American soldiers in England had led him to conclude about 56 percent favored the Republicans in the 1944 presidential campaign.

edy chaotic conditions of bureaucratic red tape under which divided authority and responsibility has victimized thousands of already discharged veterans of this war."

Congress must race against time on many other portions of the legislative program.

A practical system of absentee voting for servicemen is one of the most pressing problems. Ballots must be printed and shipped months ahead of the November election, and if the states are to be called upon for enabling legislation, their lawmakers would have time to draft and pass necessary bills.

The Senate already has approved a leave-it-to-the-states resolution, which will be considered by the House committee tomorrow.

Another soldiers-and-sailors problem involves mustering-out pay, already needed by a majority of the 75,000 men who are being discharged each month. The Senate has passed a measure providing lump sum payments of $200 to $500 for discharged veterans below the rank of generals.

The House military affairs committee is to consider the Senate bill tomorrow.

No Soldier Congressmen
President Roosevelt instructed the secretaries of war and navy today that members of Congress "may not serve in the active components of the armed services."

Mr. Roosevelt said in a formal statement that Attorney General Biddle had advised him the Constitution forbids simultaneous service in the armed forces and in Congress.

"Aside from the constitutional barrier," the president said, "there is also the problem of evaluation of service to the nation. One of the greatest strengths of our democracy in the time of crisis is a strong, virile Congress, to meet the problems arising from the demands of total war.

"The election of these congressmen after war was declared, showed that their constituents believed that their service as legislators was their paramount contribution to the war effort."

Mr. Roosevelt said the desire of legislators to serve their country under arms was understandable and appreciated, and "does them honor."

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said that in issuing his instructions to Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox the president was closing out a matter that had been dragging along for some time. A number of members of Congress have gone into uniform, although some have given up their seats to do so.

Won't Read Message
President Roosevelt on the advice of his physician will send his annual message to Congress at noon tomorrow rather than deliver it in person, but he will broadcast a shortened version to the country tomorrow night. Mr. Roosevelt arranged a late afternoon conference today with congressional leaders—Vice President Wallace, Speaker Rayburn, Senate Majority Leader Barkley and House Majority Leader McCormack.

Consequently, the annual message "On the State of the Union" will be transmitted at noon tomorrow and read to the legislators by clerks.

At 9:30 P. M., Eastern War Time, Mr. Roosevelt will broadcast a resume of it, compressed into a half hour of radio time. The annual budget estimates for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1945, will be submitted to Congress Thursday noon. Mr. Roosevelt has followed a practice of going over the budget in advance with reporters, but this year he assigned the budget seminar to Harold Smith, the budget director, and his assistant, Wayne Coy.

'We're All In The Same Boat'

Pulling toward Victory is our common aim—from the little school child, regularly buying War Stamps, and helping in salvage collection—to the housewife doing her best with rationing, taking on a war job and civilian defense duties, and cooperating with every wartime, government regulation! Backing her up—his hands strongly guiding his oars, is the storekeeper, making the best of manpower and merchandise shortages; firmly observing ceiling prices and rationing; just as the business man does his share by paying taxes in good spirit; running his office with a limited staff, and economizing at every turn of business operation. And right in the same boat is the war worker, whose grimy hands and soiled clothes are as symbolic of "gallantry in action" as the soldier's mud-spattered uniform. He, too, with all of us, is riding over the rough waves that war must bring, pulling hard and making straight for Victory—whatever sacrifice may be necessary!

However, this does not apply to those strikers who are hindering instead of helping by unjustified work stoppages. These are more interested in gaining their own ends rather than the war's end.

These are just a few things that we mention in passing, when we ask your indulgence and co-operation through the duration of the war, which we hope and pray will end soon.

HOWEVER, if you have any reasonable complaints or suggestions, we will be very glad to hear them, and will be glad to meet them, whenever and wherever good business policy and government restriction will permit.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Hitler's unhappy Reich is on tiptoe of tenseness in anticipation of Anglo-American invasion—a state of nerves which is aggravated by the grave dangers of the Russian battle.

News from Moscow today emphasizes the threat to the vital Nazi rail communications both in Poland and to the south in the Dnieper Bend where a big German army is threatened with encirclement. Berlin spokesmen are preparing the public for more bad news. Should disaster overtake the Hitlerites in Russia at the same time a major invasion was launched in the West, it would represent the worst situation that even the most gloomy Nazi could envisage.

Small wonder then that Germany is suffering from invasionitis, since upon that impending event, more than any other we can foresee, depends the trend and duration of the European war. That's the blow needed to complement the Red drive from the East.

For that matter the length of the conflict with Japan also hinges on this invasion. It's becoming increasingly clear that there's not likely to be any all-out drive by the United Nations in the Orient until the Hitlerian issue is decided, thereby releasing essential supplies and equipment. This doesn't mean that all offensive operations against the Japs must be held in abeyance, but only that the final day of reckoning must be delayed.

The Germans are jittery in all possible invasion zones, from the Balkans clear around to Norway. The fact is that while they know where invasions might be staged, there's no way of telling just where the Allies intend to deliver their major blows and where the feints will come.

Thus the Hitlerites are forced to stand on the alert everywhere, and hope against hope that they have their forces distributed to the right spots. If they guess correctly, the Allied task will be multiplied; if they're wrong, the vast difficulties of invasion will be lessened. This matching military wits is a matter of life or death for thousands of American, British and French soldiers who soon are to undertake this great adventure into the unknown.

The Germans, fishing anxiously for information, say the Allies have mapped out a five-week bombing program to pace the way for the invasion of Western Europe. This would set the date about the middle of February. Well, if the Nazis come as close as that to the zero hour, they will be lucky.

Anyway, Hitler is taking no chances but is rushing preparations for defense. Marshal Rommel, in whose strong hands the Fuehrer has placed the fate of these occupied territories, professes satisfaction with the situation. One doubts that he is as optimistic as he talks, we should be crazy not to recognize that the Germans have constructed a powerful and highly dangerous machine to ward off invasion. We are soon to get the full significance of British Prime Minister Churchill's promise long ago of sweat, blood and tears. Let's paste that in our hats.

To prepare for this crisis the Anglo-American airforces daily are intensifying their bombing of German war resources and the so-called invasion coastal zones. It's one of the decisive operations of the global conflict—the greatest air attack the world has known.

As our high command has said, the purpose of this bombing is (1) to destroy Nazi resources, and (2) finally to clear the way for our amphibious forces to swarm ashore. The bombing of war industries will continue on the crescendo until Germany has been rendered sufficiently impotent to warrant risking the lives of hundreds of thousands of our ground troops in invasion.

Then one day the combined American and British air Navies will let loose all hell along the coastline, to open up beach-heads for our men. This bombardment

LUTHER FORBIS NOW MAYOR OF WEST JEFFERSON

Former Washington C. H. Boy Becomes Civic Leader in Madison County Town

A former Washington C. H. boy not only has come to be one of the civic leaders of West Jefferson, up in Madison County between London and Columbus, but today he is receiving congratulations from friends here as well as those in his home town as the new mayor of the village.

Luther Forbis, who grew up here and went through the city schools, went into the mayor's office, succeeding R. E. Stone, one of three candidates he defeated in the election in November when he counted 44 per cent of the 552 votes cast for the office. The other two candidates were Major W. E. Seaman, a retired army officer and former mayor, and Charles Hay, a member of the present council.

The new mayor is a former member of the West Jefferson police force and campaigned on a platform of "a fair and impartial enforcement of all laws with special favors to none."

For the past 18 years he has been connected with the Columbus Bolt Works where he is now a supervisor.

Forbis was born in Wellsville in 1908 and went to school in both Pennsylvania and West Virginia before his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Forbis, came to Washington C. H. where he was graduated from high school. His father was associated with the Baker Wood Preserving Co. and went to Marion when operations were transferred there several years ago. His family still lives there. He also has four sisters and a brother, Sgt. Raymond Forbis, now with the American army in Italy.

Luther Forbis has friends all up and down the business section of Washington C. H., made when he was a caddy and later the caddy master at the Country Club where they went for recreation during the summers.

He went to West Jefferson in 1928 and has lived there ever since. He is married and lives on Town Street.

He got his first taste of municipal government affairs early last year when he was appointed to fill out an unexpired term on the village council.

FISH CAN BE RAISED IN FARM YARD POND

Strange Story Comes Out of Old Dust Bowl

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—The dust bowl finally has produced a fish story—but not the kind you expect.

It's a story entitled "Techniques of Fishpond Management" and it was written by Lt. Lawrence V. Compton, former associate biologist of the Soil Conservation Service in Albuquerque. It tells how to raise fish in a farmyard fishpond and says a one-half acre pond will produce 100 pound of fish a year, supplementing war rations.

The farmyard fish study was started after the soil conservation service advocated the construction of small rain-catching reservoirs as one means of combatting the old dust bowl conditions. Then it was discovered the ponds were capable of raising fish as well as storing water.

likely will continue several days—the most devilish rain of death ever let loose from the clouds. When that bombing gets under way, it will be our signal that the invasion is at hand.

Norway Still No Cinch for Nazis

Lutheran Ministry Continues to Defy German Orders

MAILED FIST—These German troops on guard in Oslo are emblematic of how Nazis rule Norway by force.

By DAVID VELIE

Central Press Correspondent WAUKESHA, Wis.—It is not likely known, but America's foreign language press has assumed an important role in the current American war effort.

To obtain little-known information on what people in enemy-occupied countries are doing the Office of Strategic Services, headed by Brig. Gen. William J. Donovan, as a corps of translators all over the country who keep tabs on foreign language papers and send translations of those publications' important stories to the OSS' headquarters in Washington.

These papers have access to many reports by travelers and their news sources which American publications cannot always reach, and often reveal facts about occupied countries which otherwise might not quickly be known.

For example, Sweden's recent order banning the German army rail traffic through Sweden was quickly applauded by Danish, Swedish and Norwegian papers in the United States. Indeed, a suggestion has been made by some Swedish groups in Sweden that the 33,000,000 kroner (about $16,600,000, as the Swedish krona is worth about 20 cents) which Sweden received for that traffic during the current war, be paid to Norway by Sweden after the war as a reconstruction fund.

What Translations Reveal An OSS translator is Emory C. Skarshaug, librarian of Carroll college in Waukesha. He regularly reads a Norwegian and a Danish weekly newspaper for Donovan's agency.

The translations made by Skarshaug almost uniformly show in recent months that the Norse unceasingly maintain a concerted opposition to their Nazi overlords. The 1 per cent of Norway's 3,000,000 population that supports Vidkun Quisling's regime lives in mortal fear of the day when the Nazis will be defeated, Skarshaug said, quoting his translations.

Not so long ago the labor office in Oslo was blown up, just as the Nazis were preparing to use the office records to round up workers or forced labor. Such sabotage is going on all the time in Norway, even though the Nazis continue their wholesale reprisals. On rail lines, especially, is there considerable sabotage. Railroad traffic has been slowed by the sabotage and removal of much Norwegian rolling stock to Germany.

The Nazis lately have been shifting older troops into Norway, sending the younger soldiers to the fighting fronts. The older troops in Norway are often the butt of jokes of their own compatriots, who laugh at them because they are rather green.

Surveying the present Norwegian picture, Skarshaug finds little in it that should make Quisling feel he has won over Norway for the Nazis.

"Quisling's state decrees, especially the one ordering the nation's pastors to serve Hitler, have evoked fierce opposition," Skarshaug asserted.

ARCH-TRAITOR—Vidkun Quisling

Constant Sabotage By Patriot Groups A Serious Problem

ment for traitors, and has drawn up lists of persons to be tried after the war. Before the war, capital punishment was prohibited in Norway.

Little wonder, then, says Skarshaug, that Quisling recently announced a series of laws ordering the death penalty for persons acting in opposition to his administration, and also set up his headquarters in an Oslo palace with a heavy guard, inside and out. Around the palace, for several hundred yards in every direction, all houses were destroyed.

These laws give Quisling also the right to declare a state of emergency, in parts or in all of Norway, even when Norway is not at war, and without mobilization of the armed forces.

In London, members of the Norwegian government-in-exile say those laws are only noisy threats of a Nazi stooge, who is desperately trying to maintain his power. The net effect has been that the Norwegian rank and file have become more determined in their opposition to Quisling.

Loot Extremely Heavy The Norse have not only been under a harsh military rule, but also have seen their country thoroughly looted. In three and a half years of occupation, the Nazis have drawn out cash and goods worth $1,500,000,000, or twice the annual income of Norway before the war. The Germans, by manipulation of prices charged for German goods sold in Norway, have also made necessities of life much more expensive than before the war.

Watching their country's looting and seeing some of their Quisling countrymen sharing in the spoils, the Norwegian patriots, according to the government-in-exile, plan after the war to ferret out Norwegian profits from collaboration with the Nazis. Devices to hide those profits, by investments in property and other things won't help the Quislings retain those profits, it was explained, for such moneys are to be turned back to the government.

For his translations, Skarshaug reads the Decorah-Posten (Post), oldest Norwegian weekly in the United States, and the Dansk Tidende (Danish Times), edited in Chicago by Christ Brix, a leader in Danish-American circles.

A graduate of Luther college, Decorah, Ia., Skarshaug, who is as Norwegian as his name, was librarian at the University of Cincinnati until he came to Carroll this fall. He learned Norwegian as a youngster in a Norwegian settlement near Decorah. Later he studied it in a rural parochial school near home. He also reads Danish, German and French.

The Danes, according to Skarshaug, have warned members of the so-called Danish free corps, formed in Denmark to fight for Germany on the Russian front, that there will be no place in Denmark for them after Denmark is free from German bondage. That message, sent through the Danish underground, terrified most of those who served in the corps, Skarshaug asserted.

KILLS SWEETHEART, THEN SHOOTS SELF

Murder and Suicide Occur at Laurelvile

LOGAN, Jan. 10—(AP)—Phyllis Lucille Johnson, 16-year-old high school girl, was slain at nearby Laurelvile by her fiance, Clyde W. Weaver, 26, who then killed himself, Sheriff Floyd Duffy reported today.

The girl was shot to death after she refused to accompany Weaver on a date, the sheriff said. Coroner E. A. Person gave a verdict of "murder and suicide."

The sheriff said Weaver, a truck driver stopped his automobile to pick up Miss Johnson as she and a sister walked down a Laurelvile street. When the girl refused to enter his automobile, Weaver took a shotgun from the car, shot her in the neck, then fired a fatal charge into his own head, Duffy added.

Duffy said the couple had "kept company" for five months. Weaver was the son of Clifton Weaver of Laurelvile and Miss Johnson was the daughter of Judson Johnson, a farmer and clerk of Benton Township, Hocking County.

LITTLE CHATS ON PUBLIC NOTICES

By JAMES E. POLLARD Copyright, 1943

A young attorney takes issue with the basic argument, running through these "Chats," that it is highly important that notices of intention be publicized as widely as possible. He holds that in most cases only the interested parties are directly concerned. He argues also that for the most part the public pays little attention to Public Notices.

As far as he goes he is right on both of these latter counts. But that is not the whole story. Even in private matters that require a Public Notice, there is an element of public interest. The dual provision for reasonable publicity in the form of a proper notice and for a lapse of time before the intention can be carried out is a necessary one.

There is always a chance that others may be directly affected. Good reasons may develop why the proposed action should be modified or halted. Public Notices, then, are for the many and not the few and as such are a vital part of the democratic process.

Hobbies Must Go

Literally millions of individual enterprises are mapping plans for postwar operation. Not much is heard of these plans as most of them are buried in obscurity. But collectively they will decide the future of this country. The public should be told of these plans if for no other reason than to spike the assumption that planning is the private property of political officeholders.

Typical of the social alertness and hope controlling the thoughts of many business men is the statement of a member of the distribution industry, the president of a fifty-year old store system, who says: "... We realize that doing all we can in wartime to serve town homes and farms is not enough. We must take specific steps immediately to be ready to do our share when the war ends. It is our obligation. We face a great opportunity to make available to consumers at low prices millions of needed products."

Acting on his own advice, this merchandiser has developed detailed plans for expanded advertisements in the local press. He has placed tentative orders with manufacturers and has devised improved operating methods designed to cut costs to a minimum.

Retailers carry a heavy responsibility and they know it. They must anticipate postwar consumer demand and be ready to the best of their ability to meet it, efficiently and quickly. They will be able to do their job best in a free competitive market, unhampered by paralyzing "official" restrictions.

Present price and rationing controls must be ended as soon as possible after the war—if consumers are to get maximum service from merchants who know that freedom of action is essential to low cost distribution of all products.

Need for Care of Cars

Figures assembled from 39 states for the first half of 1943 indicate that about 25,500,000 passenger cars still have been registered during the year. This is a decrease of 13.5 per cent from the 29,500,000 registered in 1941, which was the high point in the whole 43 years of automobile registrations.

A few new cars will be released for sale in 1944, but not enough, probably, to cover the number of those which finally cease to run in that year. The moral is plain. Take care of your car. Care for it for your own sake, for the future comfort of your family and for the possible need of your country. It is unlikely that new ones will be available before 1945, and by that time there will be such an enormous backlog of orders that most folks with cars in fair running order will have to wait still another year.

newest Naval unit, the Seabees. On their shoulders falls the major task of preparing bases to bridge the huge water span of the Pacific from San Francisco to Tokyo. Wherever the Navy has gone, the Seabees have been among the first to disembark. They do not carry heavy guns, but their bulldozers and tractors have carved out new airfields to replace every one destroyed by either the enemy or our own invading forces. Their work at Pearl Harbor, it is no secret, has made that famous base far stronger than it was on the 7th day of December, 1941.

The Seabees are two years old, and their godfather, Captain John Perry of the Navy Engineering Corps, merits the congratulations and thanks of millions of Americans whose boys may come home safely because the Seabees got there first.

Military Bases

Former President Hoover suggests that we should move to obtain either outright possession or 999-year leases on military bases that we have built all around the world at a cost of hundreds of millions of dollars.

With air power what it is, and growing ever more deadly, we should feel much safer if we had those distant outposts. Much safer also, to tell the truth, if we were certain that no hostile nation could use them against us.

However, there is the question whether other nations—Brazil, to take an outstanding example—would permit us to establish on her soil that extra-territoriality we now have resigned in China. Would we permit even Britain to have permanent military bases on American soil?

Gland Disorders Few in Children

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

RECENTLY I delivered a homily on the value of old-fashioned remedies, as against trying out some bang new drug or electrical treatment that is still in the experimental stage.

There was a remark I think of George Ade's about a boy who was Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

dropped on his head when very young and afterwards believed everything he read in the Sunday papers. That seems to be the attitude of the public now that the very word of a doctor is a positive cure for incurable diseases.

Especially is this true of parents about endocrine products. These extracts of the ductless glands have been publicized widely as being able to change the whole aspect of the body, mind and soul. Pictures in magazines and books show dwarfs turned into growing children of normal height, fat boys turned into rugged individualists, morose into geniuses, and moral delinquents into pulpit orators—all by some hypodermic injections of a little clear fluid pressed from a pituitary, a placenta, or an adrenal cortex.

Few True Cases

Any parent whose child doesn't look like Gainsborough's BLUE BOY, or conform to the exact figures for height, weight, fat pads, and hair distribution is rushed to the endocrinologist's office.

Now I find an article by a conservative endocrinologist, Dr. Richard Wagner, of Boston, who attends a large clinic and hospital where all kinds of these children with alleged developmental defects are brought, so that he certainly has experience. And he, after years of study, has decided that only a few, a relatively small proportion are really due to deficiency or disorder of the ductless glands.

Most of them are imitations of endocrine types—accentuations of physiologic phases of development—transitory states, temporary accentuations of constitutional and familial factors.

In short, in his treatment of this great group Dr. Wagner believes strongly in the use of a very old-fashioned method of treatment—time. Time, as a very wise man said, heals all things.

Time Affects Adjustments
For instance, Dr. Wagner has a picture of a little fat girl at five and a half years old. She looks very much like a case of retarded endocrine development. But careful tests—and there are scientific tests to determine such things—did not show any endocrine imbalance. So she was let alone and lo! and behold when she was thirteen here is a photograph showing a nicely proportioned girl of normal height and weight. Time and Nature spontaneously effected the adjustment.

It happens so many times. The fat boy whose contour worries his parents so—in more than nine cases out of ten he will be quite average at 21. I imagine if Dickens had written a "Twenty Years After" to Pickwick Papers, the fat boy would have been a lean and bustling poor law reformer.

There are tides in the affairs of the endocrine glands. Not that in proper cases endocrine treatment is not valuable. It is. But everybody doesn't need it in order to grow up.

JOHN SMITH'S warning made the warm tropical day seem chilly. A draft played around Mallory Baker's heart. But instead of answering that ominous advice she made her words personal.

"But surely this is not a permanent goodbye." She tilted her head in a purposely coquettish fashion.

"Certainly not. I had intended to bombard the hotels to locate you when I arrived in the city." A sudden frown creased the area between John Smith's blond eyebrows. "Or, do you happen to have friends there?"

"Heavens, yes," said Mallory easily, as if surprised to be thought otherwise. Tod Patrick's spell came to her mind, bringing with it the name of the town with the jeweled roofs. "I have friends in the city and in Taxco." To herself she said, "Keep helping me, Tod! Keep helping me!"

"In that case I'd better give you my address."

"Yes." The blond girl watched with careful eyes while John Smith wrote on his calling card. His fingertips, gripping the pencil, were thin and long, but powerful in a wiry fashion. That is one card I'll never lose, the girl vowed, because I want to know exactly where to find this man.

When he looked at her again she was smiling her rapid smile, giving the impression of being just a pretty blond girl, a bit stupid, except for her talent. Now that she had her second wind she deliberately mentioned his admonition regarding the mountains and fog. However, she still wore her insipid, flirtatious look.

"Thanks for telling me about the dangerous highway. I'll be most careful."

"Good. Now we'll escort you to your car. Come, Bill!" In addressing his younger brother, John Smith's voice held its usual authority to tone, as if he were giving a command.

William answered the sharp tone with a quick motion of his feet. They really should click, decided the girl. "Perhaps Miss Baker would like a drink before she resumes her journey."

"Which means you'd like one for yourself," John Smith's curt voice continued. "The less liquor, the more brains. Try to remember that." However, he softened his manner when he turned to the blond girl. "If you care for a drink, Miss Baker?" He had made himself halt, as if he reins had been pulled, in an attempt to continue being hospitable, although it was evident he wanted her to go on and leave them.

"I think I'd like one of those," Mallory pointed to a little cart standing beneath a piece of cloth stretched across poles; that crude parasol, rigged up by the merchant as a protection for his wares, was important. He was selling ice on sticks.

"Oh, a paleta?" said William. "A lollipop of colored ice. I've eaten every color, trying to determine which is worst. All violent. All bad. Let's do have them." He walked to the cart and selected three deep green ones. "Now," he said, when he handed one to Mallory, "you'll be sure and remember Tamazunchale. Did you know they call this town 'Thomas and Charlie, Miss Baker?'"

Busily eating the vivid green ice, the girl merely shook her head. Thomas and Charlie to some people possibly. Johann and Wilhelm to her.

While they stood eating, she glanced into the small store back of them. It had everything from candles to burro saddles. There were bottles of medicines, beans, ropes, chilis, various tobaccos, the usual bottles of wines and tequila and beer, harachas, vegetables, soft drinks—everything was on the street. And more.

Mallory watched a little girl buy sugar, not granulated, but in a crude chunk, like fudge that hardened too quickly. The grocer hacked off a smaller chunk, using a hatchet, added another small silver, then took the little girl's money.

"You see," said John Smith, "you are not the only people having sugar troubles. For the little girl it is a case of poverty. For your country it is rationing." A smattering of wrinkles formed about his eyes as he chuckled. "So neither has the sugar she'd like to have."

His evident pleasure over the situation angered Mallory. "I have all the sugar I want," she said stiffly. "Besides, rationing has a lot to do with our winning the war. And we Americans will win it."

"You're right," he said with silk-en graciousness. "We will win."

"Not 'we Americans.' Just 'we.' 'We,' with angular faces and guttural voices. Again Mallory's haste to be away from the two dangerous brothers made her feel ill. She hoped they would attribute the perspiration on her brow to the heat, not to fright, as it was.

"I must go," she now said with bluntness.

As before, the men fell into line with her, sandwiching her. "Do your friends expect you?" asked John.

"Expect me!" jeered Mallory. "They expected me last week." Other words were forming in her mind, only it wasn't Tod Patrick helping her this time. It was Prisms. Prisms' rolling, terrified eyes when she had watched her mistress lift a revolver from her dressing table drawer. "Although I'm not sure they will be my friends when they find out I smuggled in my pistol."

She heard William Smith gasp noticeably. John, however, showed no excitement. However, his smile looked a bit puzzled. Deliberately the girl looked up into his face and flickered her eyelashes. "When will you be back in the city? Soon, I hope."

"Late tomorrow night, I think."

Possibly the next day." John Smith was walking past her automobile now with a too intentional disinterest.

"My car," Mallory said softly, adding to herself, "As you darned well know!"

"Oh?" John Smith gave a good imitation of surprise. "And such a nice one, too. I envy you. You must have had a special permit in the States to get enough gasoline to drive a machine like this across the continent."

Mallory got into the car. William, silent as he was, the majority of the time, helped her. "Thank you," she murmured, then turned to John Smith. "I bought it in Laredo."

"Oh?" he said a second time. "I feel sorry for whoever had to give it up."

"It wouldn't do him any good where he is," the girl thought. However, she only mumbled an agreement. Her pretended lack of enthusiasm for the subject apparently deceived the elder Smith. He continued his spoken admiration that, beneath its casualness, was really a hawk-like scrutiny.

Mallory knew he would not waste that much attention on just any automobile. He knew this automobile. He knew it had belonged to Dr. Courvier. And he'd give a great deal to find out if Mallory were aware of the identity of the former owner. But she withheld that satisfaction. She merely eased away from the two men by starting her engine and backing very slowly away from their hands, which still rested on top of the lowered windows. Their last glimpse was of her flirtatious, naive face.

As soon as she was out of their sight, that assumed shallow expression changed to one of calculation. Just where did she stand. Why did she believe she had friends in Mexico. And they were disconcerted slightly by the information. They believed that she carried a weapon. They believed that she did not know the identity of the former owner of the machine she was driving. But most important was whether or not they believed she had noticed them back on the Laredo-Monterrey highway. She did not know whether she had put that over.

But she thought she knew how to find out. Making sure no one watched, she backed down a curving decline until she was hidden by the jungle growth. She barely could see a portion of the highway, not the part where she had turned to one side, but a spot beyond. There she sat, so motionless that bright, unnameable birds flitted close by and squawked fearlessly.

She began to ache with sitting still so long. Yet it wasn't really so long. Twenty-three minutes, according to her watch. Twenty-three minutes did not make a long time. For tortured muscles, perhaps, but not long enough for John Smith and his quiet brother to have completed the claimed "Many things to do. Many people to see."

For just as she looked at her watch, Mallory heard the roar of a strong motor and there flashed across the portion of the highway that she could see the black sedan with white side lines.

Understand Your Federal Income Tax

INCOME OF MINORS

A minor who receives income (a) from property belonging to him, or (b) from funds held in trust for him, or (c) from earnings which belong to him, must file an income and victory tax return (or a return must be filed in his behalf by his guardian or parent) if the total income for the year is $500 or more.

A minor is one who has not yet reached full legal age. In some States both men and women come of age, or reach the age of majority, at the age of 21 years, while in other States men become of age at 21 and women at 18 years of age.

It is the law generally that during the minority of a child his services and earnings do not belong to him, but to his parents, who are under a legal duty to support him and have a legal right to his earnings.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, therefore, it is presumed, for income tax purposes, that a parent has the legal right to the earnings of a minor and, accordingly, the parent must include such earnings in his own return. This is especially the case if he claims a credit for dependent or a status as a head of a family with respect to the support of the minor, for that fact would be evidence that the parent was under a duty to support the minor. In such circumstances, the parent is entitled to take credit in his return for any income and victory taxes that have been withheld at the source by employers from the wages earned by the child.

If, however, a parent has relinquished his legal duty to support the child and has relinquished his control and authority over the child by conferring on the latter the right to his earnings, together with the obligation of self-support, the minor must thereafter pay the income tax on his own earnings. Such relinquishment of rights, or emancipation, may be expressed as by voluntary agreement of parent and child, or implied from such acts and conduct as indicate consent. It may be absolute or conditional, complete or partial, as where the parent relinquishes the right to the minor's earnings but retains the right to control the social or moral conduct of the minor. In any case, it must be proved, and the burden of proof is on the parent who asserts that he is not taxable on the minor's earnings. The laws regarding emancipation vary in different States, and the facts in each case will determine whether the earnings of a minor must be reported in the return of the minor or of his parent.

Sammy Byrd Blows Lead

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Your guess on the winner of the $12,500 Los Angeles Open Golf championship is as good as the next fellow's, now that Sammy Byrd has blown up after leading the pack for two days and found himself tied in third place with Jug McSpaden of Philadelphia and Olin Dutra of Los Angeles. . . Ahead of him were Leonard Dodson of La Jolla, Calif., and Atlanta's airline pilot, Johnny Bulla, who were tied for the lead with 54-hole cards of 210 and Byron Nelson of Toledo and Craig Wood who had 211's. . . Byrd slipped to a 75 yesterday but everyone agreed he had as good a chance as any to stage another sub-par round today and take the first prize of $4,375 in war bonds.

OHIO STATE LEAGUE BEING REORGANIZED

By FRITZ HOWELL COLUMBUS, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Eight Major League clubs, five from the National League and three from the American, were believed ready today to back clubs in the proposed Ohio State class D baseball league this year should the circuit head upstream against the war-time trend and decide to operate after a two-year lapse. . . Springfield, Middletown, Lima, Zanesville and Newark representatives at a meeting here yesterday announced they were either ready to go, or would be as soon as a few arrangements were completed, and President Joe Donnelly said he would have three others—possibly Fremont, Mansfield and Marion—in the fold within a couple of weeks. . . The representatives will meet here Jan. 23 to complete organization of the circuit, first to reorganize following the demise of 31 minor leagues due to manpower shortages and other war problems.

Big Year Is Seen Ahead For Fairs

By BOB KENEFFICK

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 10.—That Sep Papin, one of the greatest trainers and drivers of harness horses of all time, is highly respected in his home state was clearly shown here when he was reelected a director of the United States Trotting Association for three years by an unanimous vote of fifty representatives of fairs in the Hoosier State.

The twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Indiana Association of County and District Fairs held in conjunction with the meeting of the Second District of the U.S.T.A., was an enthusiastic one and all the fair heads predicted that the carnivals this year would be even more successful than last year when every one was in the black.

William V. "Jake" Ward, general manager of the Illinois State Fair at Springfield, Ill., was the principal speaker and he urged Gunfire crackled outside echoing in the cave.

Next day the fighting was still terrific. The German platoon moved only a short distance, to a farmhouse behind the hill. They drank some wine and found some bread, "but you could hardly stick a knife into it," Billy said later.

Next day, the German lieutenant insisted the time had come to try to contact other German outfits. Billy looked out the window.

On a distant hill he saw troops moving.

"I tell you we've got this place surrounded," he said. "Come outside and I'll show you."

They stepped outside and Billy pointed to the movement on the hill. The lieutenant talked to him a moment, then came back to Billy, unbuckled his pistol belt and handed it to him.

"You are not our prisoner now," he said. "We are your prisoners."

So back across No Man's land, the five-foot five-inch doughboy led the column of prisoners, walking up to his lines, he turned them in, together with seven German automatics, nine binoculars and one machine pistol.

Embarrassed at the attention his exploit received, Billy's first thought was to reassure his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller of Peoria, that he is all right.

"Just tell them I'm okay and say hello," he said. After a moment's thought he added: "You might tell Peggy Mitchell of Maccon, Ga., that I'm all right, too."

Then he headed back to the lines to rejoin his company.

This is the second time the sergeant's letters from home have had a continued in the next chapter scene. A page from one of his wife's previous letters ended "so I wobbled down the hospital corridor from one side to another. Then I fainted."

The sergeant, a short, jolly soldier who was city editor of The Garnet, Kansas, Review before he entered the army, was really alarmed. For days he worried. Then the next page turned up and he learned that his wife had been acting as a nurse's aide and had been momentarily ill while assisting during an operation.

"You don't need to read magazine serials as long as you are getting V-Mail," said the sergeant, "there's suspense in every letter."

and then disclosed the Leathernecks had reorganized to resume their attack Friday.

The Americans reached Hill 660, artillery observation point one and three-quarters miles south of Sillimati Point. Allied planes lashed at enemy forward positions.

Activity on the Arawe Peninsula on the southwest coast of New Britain was confined to patrol skirmishes and an aerial assault which wiped out one Japanese-held village. But it became known that Umtungulu Village and the unserviceable Arawe airstrip, captured by American army troops soon after they landed December 15, had been regained by the enemy in a four-mile advance toward the coast.

Westward from Cape Gloucester, the Japanese put up opposition after Australian infantrymen had crossed the Dallman River, approximately 45 miles north of Allied-held Finschhafen. Bougainville-based low-level

Coca-Cola Boys Take Lead In Bowling In Close Race

Those never-say-die Coca Cola boys today are at the top of the Men's City League as it moved into the fifteenth week of its bowling schedule on the Main Street alleys. They eased into a slight lead over the Mt. Sterling outfit and Jeffersonville's Ringers last week, led both of these out-of-town teams deadlocked for second and third places in the standing.

With the Pure Oilers fairly safe in fourth place—provided they don't falter too badly, the Producers and Pennington's Bakers were tied for fifth and sixth places while the Stone Crushers from Melvin and the Slagle and Kirk outfit brought up the rear.

Lloyd's Markettes were safely entrenched in the top spot of the Women's City League after having displaced Light's Dairymaids the previous week. The Farmerettes faced their fifteenth week of bowling in third place, only a hair's breadth ahead of the ever dangerous Craig's Airsteppers and Hawkinston Treaders who were bombers, protected by fighters, penetrated a Nipponese screen of 40 to 70 planes to attack Cape St. George on the southern end of New Ireland Friday. They shot down 10 Zeros and two probables at a cost of six planes.

Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent, said the raid heralded start of an intensified air war against Rabaul, enemy base on northeastern New Britain.

The Tokyo radio said today 150 Allied planes raided Rabaul yesterday morning.

Seventh Army Air Force dive-bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked Mili Atoll, in the Marshalls Friday. The Japanese, in turn, made an ineffectual night attack on Tarawa in the American-held Gilberts.

Chinese-manned Mitchell bombers sank a 1200-ton enemy cargo ship off the southeast coast of China yesterday, Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell's headquarters announced, while United States fighters strafed Japanese river shipping on the Tangtze.

tricked 19 Germans who captured him into surrender.

The Eighth Army on the Adriatic was bogged down in deep snow drifts below Pescara.

Flying Fortress rose from Italian fields to strike the northern Adriatic naval base of Pola. Medium bombers hit Ancona, and fighter-bombers shot up trains and trucks near Aquila.

The bombing of Pola supported Marshal Tito's Yugoslav partisans, newly-pressed by a five-pronged German offensive.

The Allied air offensive from Britain slowed down momentarily, probably due to weather. British Mosquito bombers had attacked western German targets which Berlin identified as Aachen Saturday night and the Eighth U. S. Air Force had delivered a "death blow" to the Rhineland chemical center of Ludwigshafen Friday.

As the Russians swept closer to Rumania, Premier Ion Antonescu was reported to have ordered refugees from Bessarabia to clear all roads and railways leading into interior Rumania. The German minister was said to have protested that peasants were clogging communication lines. The same Turkish report added that Rumanian opposition parties had petitioned King Mihai against further prosecution of the war.

Markets and Finance

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Deferred deliveries of wheat declined substantially today under heavy profit-taking, although the May contract held firm with last Saturday's close. At one time May wheat sold at $1.73 3/4, the new futures ceiling, but weakness in other months soon unsettled the nearby delivery.

Selling in wheat and all other grains increased in volume as the market drew toward a close. Losses of a cent or more were registered in all pits. Food grains were lower on profit-taking and an expansion in corn bookings to more than 200,000 bushels. The good war news and increased moisture in the southwest unsettled the nearby delivery.

At the close wheat was 3/4 lower to 3/8 higher, May $1.71 3/4, July $1.73 3/4, May 79 3/4, rye was down 1 1/2-1 3/4, May $1.21 1/2, and barley was 1 1/2-2 lower, May $1.12 1/2, July $1.13 1/2.

RATION BOARD TRIES TO EASE INCONVENIENCE

Four Inspection Stations for Truck Tires - - Lost Books Should Bear Address

In hope that truck owners and drivers might save themselves unnecessary inconvenience, Ration Board officials here repeated that there are only four official inspectors for truck tires and that all truck tire inspections would have to be made at the Barnhart Oil Co. station on East Market Street, the Hawkinson Tread Service on Columbus Avenue, the Tire and Rubber Shop on North Street and the Pure Oil Station on Mark Street.

No change has been made in the inspection arrangements for passenger cars, however. Tires on these cars are still inspected at the same stations as in the past, it was made plain.

Lost Ration Books

Lost ration books—those for all rationed commodities—are a source of worry for Ration Board officials as well as for the owners, it was said at the office here as it was pointed out that while most of those reported missing here have eventually turned up, hundreds of them have gone to the dead letter office because of a lack of sufficient address after finders had dropped them in mail boxes. New books can be obtained, it was said, but it also was pointed out that the delay in checking and making application for replacements cause considerable inconvenience. Lost books, when bearing the proper address of the owner, can be, and usually are promptly returned through the simple expedient of finders placing them in the mail. It was said at the Ration Board that too much emphasis could not be placed on the importance of writing names and addresses on the books and the suggestion was made that "everyone would do well to check addresses right now."

Regulation Modified

Although it has little effect here, Ration Board officials called attention to the modification of an OPA regulation which now reads: "All sales or deliveries of commodities, made or produced in his home without assistance of hired help and not in excess of $75 in any one calendar month, are exempt from general price regulation."

In answer to many inquiries concerning household salvage fats, which may be turned in to retail meat dealers for brown stamps at the rate of two points for each pound, it was said that only householders saving their fats are eligible—restaurants and commercial establishments are not entitled to collect on fats they salvage.

Fuel Oil Situation

With more than half the winter still to come, fuel oil users here should budget their supplies even more carefully, rationing officials said today. Householders should have used not more than 44 percent of their ration as of Monday.

"Unless all conservation measures are taken, the ration may not be sufficient to last through the rest of the winter. To make sure that you are not burning your oil too fast, the proportion of your yearly ration which has already been used should not be greater than the maximum figure announced," the ration board suggested.

Second Pork 'Bonus'

With hogs continuing to come into the market in unusually large numbers and slaughterers unable to handle them due to lack of sufficient help, OPA is trying to relieve the situation by making spare stamp number two in War Ration Book Four good for the purchase of five points—not pounds—worth of fresh pork and all sausage through January 15.

"The new stamp is not good for buying smoked or cured pork such as smoked ham and bacon nor is it good for the purchase of lard and canned pork products. Excluding smoked and cured pork from the supplemental ration is necessary because the U. S. government is experiencing considerable difficulty in obtaining the amount of those items it needs for the armed forces and our Allies. Lard and canned pork do not present the same freezer storage problem," a ration board spokesman said.

OPA officials point out the complete removal of pork from rationing as has been suggested, would quickly make pork scarce in coastal areas far removed from the centers of pork production, such as Fayette County. In addition, such sweeping action would free millions of brown stamps which would create a rush for the limited amount of butter and other meats and fats.

LEGAL MOVES SEEN IN TRIPLE MURDER

New Evidence Found During Post Mortems

Within the next few days some legal move on the part of defense counsel in the first degree murder cases growing out of the killing of the Elmer McCoy family, is expected.

Just what this will be is problematical, and may come this week or next.

Prosecutor John B. Hill's statement that the results of the autopsies performed on the murder victims, Friday, had been "most satisfactory" is construed to mean that new evidence bearing on the crime had been strengthened by the examination.

Dr. E. H. McDonald, acting coroner in the case during the absence of Dr. Reiff, assisted Dr. Horace Davidson and Dr. Reiff in performing the three autopsies.

Coroner Reiff will file his report sometime this week, it is indicated, and the report is expected to contain much of interest bearing on the case.

MANY BREAKS IN NEW PIPE LINE DELAY ITS USE

Sixty-three Breaks Are Found During Water Tests Made

Scores of breaks which have come to light in the water testing of the "little big inch" pipeline built from the Beaumont, Texas, oil fields to the east coast, have prevented use of the line and it will not be ready for moving gasoline across the country until sometime in February.

This information was announced Monday out of Washington, D. C. by officials of the Petroleum Administration for War. Sixty-three breaks in the line were repaired.

Operation of the line had originally been scheduled for late this month, and the line has been completed across Ohio for several weeks.

J. C. Argetsinger, vice-president and general counsel for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., which supplied the pipe, said at Youngstown that the pipe was made according to specifications and was tested rigidly. "We believe proper and prompt corrections are being made in all instances," Argetsinger stated.

Whether the breaks were due to faulty pipe or faulty welding was not announced in the statement out of Washington, D. C., but unless welding is done expertly and carefully inspected, leaks would result, it is pointed out.

It is also pointed out that breaks in the pipe itself might occur if the pipe were subjected to undue strain at points of stream crossings or other places where sharp dips occur, or where contraction and expansion might result by reason of the pipe undergoing extreme changes in temperature.

In making the water tests, the pipe is filled with water and subjected to heavy pressure before the valuable gasoline is placed in the pipe.

Mary Robinson Resigns As Probation Officer

Fayette County is minus a probation officer, at least for a few days.

Miss Mary D. Robinson has been granted a leave of absence from her duties as probation officer by Probate Judge Otis B. Core. Judge Core expects to appoint another officer within the next two or three days, he said today.

"I feel that I'd better give all my time to Red Cross now when there are so many things to look after," Miss Robinson said. She named the two home nursing classes now being taught, the proposed course in nutrition and canteen work for which registrations are now being taken, the daily sewing classes, work at the blood bank and the daily telegrams from servicemen which must be looked after as justification for her giving full time to Red Cross. "It's a temporary leave of absence during this emergency," she explained.

The two home nursing classes, one for Negro women which meets on Thursday night and another for white women which meets on Tuesday night, are going full blast, Miss Robinson said. She told of one Negro woman who walked two miles every week to attend class sessions—"and she hasn't missed a meeting yet," Miss Robinson said.

The Red Cross Mobile Blood unit is scheduled to come here again February 7 and 8, Miss Robinson said. "Our quota next time is 340 pints of blood. The church is increasing its facilities so we can take care of that many," she added.

Miss Marguerite Mauger, home economics teacher at Washington High School will teach the class in nutrition and canteen work for which registrations are now being taken, Miss Robinson said.

Increasing from two sessions a week to one each day, the sewing classes are busy now making the 750 kit bags to be filled for men sent overseas. "There are so many more men being sent overseas now that the Red Cross needs these bags almost as soon as they can be made," Miss Robinson said.

"I get three or four telegrams every day from soldiers in camps. They have their troubles and go to the Red Cross field director at their camp and the field director wires me so I can do what I can to straighten it out," Miss Robinson said.
